The Tale of Shoot the Moon is a haunting tale of family and tragedy. Set in the 1960s, the novel follows the Hearn family as they navigate the tumultuous decade. The story is told from the perspective of the four Hearn children, each of whom provides a unique perspective on the events that unfold.

The Hearn family is a seemingly perfect family. The parents, James and Grace, are both successful professionals. The children, Luke, Mary, Ginny, and JJ, are all bright and well-adjusted. However, beneath the surface of perfection, there are cracks beginning to show.

The novel begins with the death of Luke, the eldest Hearn child. Luke is a promising young man with a bright future ahead of him. His death is a devastating blow to the family, and it sends them into a tailspin.

In the aftermath of Luke's death, the Hearn family begins to fall apart. James and Grace become increasingly distant from each other, and the children begin to act out. Mary becomes withdrawn and depressed. Ginny becomes rebellious and promiscuous. JJ becomes withdrawn and angry.

The Tale of Shoot the Moon is a powerful and moving novel about the destructive power of grief. The novel explores the ways in which grief can tear a family apart, and it shows how even the strongest of families can be broken by tragedy.
